

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE “TRADE UNIONS AND LABOR IN AFRICA”

29th- 31st March 2017

Faculdade de Letras da Universidade do Porto

The African Studies Center of the University of Porto (CEAUP) and the General Confederation of the Portuguese Workers (CGTP-IN) will organize from March 29 to March 31, 2017 at the Faculdade de Letras da U. Porto an international conference on Trade-unionism and Labor in Africa.

A special issue of the Journal on African Studies Africana Studia containing the main papers and results of the Conference will be published by the CEAUP.

After 1945, the increasing foreign investment in many African Territories allowed the making of an important working-class and its organizations (in spite of the colonial repressive policies).

During the 1960's and 1970's the African trade-unions played a relevant role in fostering the growth and modernization of the new African societies. Yet, in the two following decades, the changes induced in the African states policies by the increase of public debts and by the delocalization of capital fluxes blocked the emerging power of the African labor organizations. In the mid-1990's the investment in Africa resumed and is now shared also by the BRIC's. However, the correlation of forces is no longer favorable to the African Unions.

What trends are now going on? How can African trade unions recover their former power and lead the collective bargaining, in the defense of social and labor rights and social progressive changes? This Conference aims to discuss the following items:

- the history of African trade unions and the renewal of its problematics and methodologies – new archive sources, oral sources, new monographic books ;

- the African trade unions, capital mobility and the interests in the natural resources of Africa ;
- African trade unionism and its difficult social and political context: Union's Independence, Union's organization, growth of the informal sector;
- African unions and its role in social change: institutions of social dialogue; articulation of the labor organizations with social and cooperative movements
- African trade unionism and the information technologies: upgrading the union militants and the organization of union databases

We expect that this Conference and the publication of its main results may contribute not only to a theoretical reflection but also to a practical impact in the policies of the organized labor. Thus, and because African trade-unionism should be discussed mainly by African trade-unionists, more than 30 African union organizations at federal and confederal level (of English, French and Portuguese official language) have already stated their willingness to participate in this Conference.
